

Controlling Session Size – Part I

Did you know that very large ACE sessions can take longer to calculate and save? The following tips can be used to reduce session size:

1 - Limit the results that are saved with the session. The Session Properties dialog, Calculation tab, gives options for saving results. By default, ACE saves all calculated results, including RISK statistics, with the session. To reduce session size, save only phased results. Do this by checking the box “Save results without statistics”. Uncheck the “Save results calculated in the Inputs/Results Viewer” (IRV) to save the session without any calculated results. The Point Estimate column will still be populated, but ACE will need to recalculate to view results in the IRV or in reports.

2 - Applying background and/or font color increases session size. Use of color helps readability of the session, but excessive formatting on an already large session can significantly increase size. Use color wisely!
